GUBI'S ALFRESCO

As spring gives way to summer, the call of the outdoors grows louder with the brightening of the light. Unconfined by walls, our homes expand into gardens, flow onto patios, and spill over onto balconies. The boundaries between inside and out dissolve, and alfresco spaces become more than mere seasonal escapes.

This is an invitation to embrace a free and fresh way of living, where convention is cast aside, spontaneity thrives, and nature is woven into the fabric of everyday life. GUBI's Alfresco embodies this bohemian spirit, celebrating a lifestyle that cherishes creativity, freedom, and the simple pleasures of the outdoors.

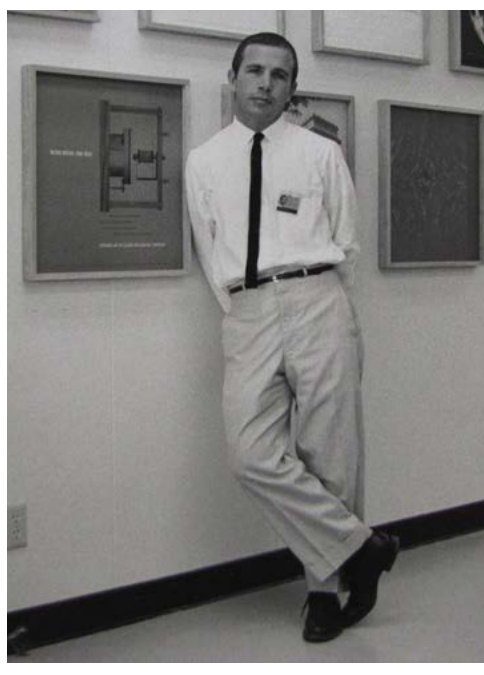

Wherever life takes you, GUBI takes you alfresco.

HOME IS A PLACE TO RELAX & BE PRESENT A PLACE FOR HOBBIES AND SPIRITUAL PURSUITS

My holiday home is located in the Huairou district in the suburbs of Beijing. I moved here with my family because we wanted to enjoy nature, and it's a perfect place for our weekends, surrounded by a very traditional Chinese rural landscape. It's set on relatively high ground, so you can't see the details of the building from the outside, and it harmonizes beautifully with the surroundings.

Even though the yard had been abandoned for many years, I was attracted by the structure of the ancient building and inspired to renovate. We wanted to create a sense of contrasts, and after two years of complicated remodeling, the building is finally complete with a hybrid architectural style that combines the beam structure of traditional Chinese houses with a modern exterior look, generating new aesthetic interest while satisfying function. In the sculpture-filled yard, we chose outdoor furniture to make the alfresco experience more comfortable and enriching. Sitting around in the yard, we can see the stars and hear the sounds of wildlife at night.

My passion for art and design has led me to develop a great interest in spatial design. I continually collect classic and iconic masterpieces from the 20th century, and try to integrate these products to create a new style of space. I choose designs that are interesting and culturally relevant, and I spend a lot of time studying design and art. I feel that art is a guide to where we should go, and design is the best way to go about solving the problem of how to get there. Art is spiritual; design is universal.

I look for materials that harmonize with common oriental styles, or design pieces with eastern shapes. Gabriella Crespi's designs with extraordinary bohemian vibes are, therefore, perfect for my space. She lived in Asia, and her insights into life here are reflected in her designs. Her influence is reflected in the work of many fashion designers today.

Having only Chinese-style beams, pillars, and antique Chinese furniture would be too old style for me, so I mix in modern elements. It's important to me that I introduce furniture into the space that creates a harmonious contrast. I think it's a new kind of contrast, something that has not really been done before. This is a very interesting relationship, in which the aesthetics of the Chinese countryside and classic European design collide to create a new visual experience.

I love GUBI because the brand has a lot of iconic design pieces and its style is very much in line with our current lifestyle habits. And, of course, GUBI's collection incorporates a wide roster of design masters: Gabriella Crespi, Paavo Tynell, Pierre Paulin, Mathieu Matégot, and more. One of my favorite pieces is the 9602 Floor Lamp by Paavo Tynell, because of how Tynell combines natural materials and craftsmanship to create an introverted sense of unique sophistication.

The first sketches that French designer Pierre Paulin drew for what was to become the Pacha Collection were simple pencil outlines that resembled illustrative clouds. One of those sketches went on to become the Pacha Lounge Chair, which pioneered low-level living and a new way to sit when it was launched in 1975.

TRANSITION ——— AL SPACES

Tropique Dining Chair, Classic White in Leslie 12
Atmosfera Dining Table, 281 x 105 cm
Obello Portable Lamp

The divisions between inside and out have been blurring for decades, and today, there is a distinct global shift towards a more flexible approach to where we work, rest and play. Whereas once people wanted to ‘bring the outside in’ with biophilic interiors, or take the inside out by creating ‘outdoor rooms,’ now indoor and outdoor areas are merging to create overlapping zones where the conventional distinctions between indoors and out are eroded. Such threshold spaces are no longer seen simply as welcome additions to our homes, but an integral part of them.

Today, more and more of us are investing in considered schemes that flow out onto a terrace or balcony, extending the usable square footage of our homes. Architecture flows outside to create ‘transteriors’ – half-way spaces of transition that are neither fully indoors nor entirely out. These might be covered patios, sunrooms and conservatories, heated decks or greenhouses, pergolas strung with lights that draw the eye and create a convivial atmosphere, or even simple canopies to gather beneath.

As we move through, between, and within spaces, we want our design values to move with us. Outdoor spaces have acquired the same importance to us as rooms within the house – zoned into comfortable, well-equipped extensions of the home, providing for everything you might do inside, with aesthetic standards to match.

PRIVATE RESIDENCE
SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA

Nestled in the forested hills of the Southern California coast, this home has the best of two worlds – remote enough to offer the serenity of nature, but close enough to the city to feel connected. The sublime water view down the canyon is reminiscent of the French or Italian Riviera, and the exteriors have a fitting contemporary Mediterranean style, in contrast to the Scandinavian interiors. Both inside and out, you can feel the ocean breeze in the air and get together to laugh, have drinks, or just enjoy the view and sounds of nature.

450 WARREN STREET BROOKLYN, NEW YORK

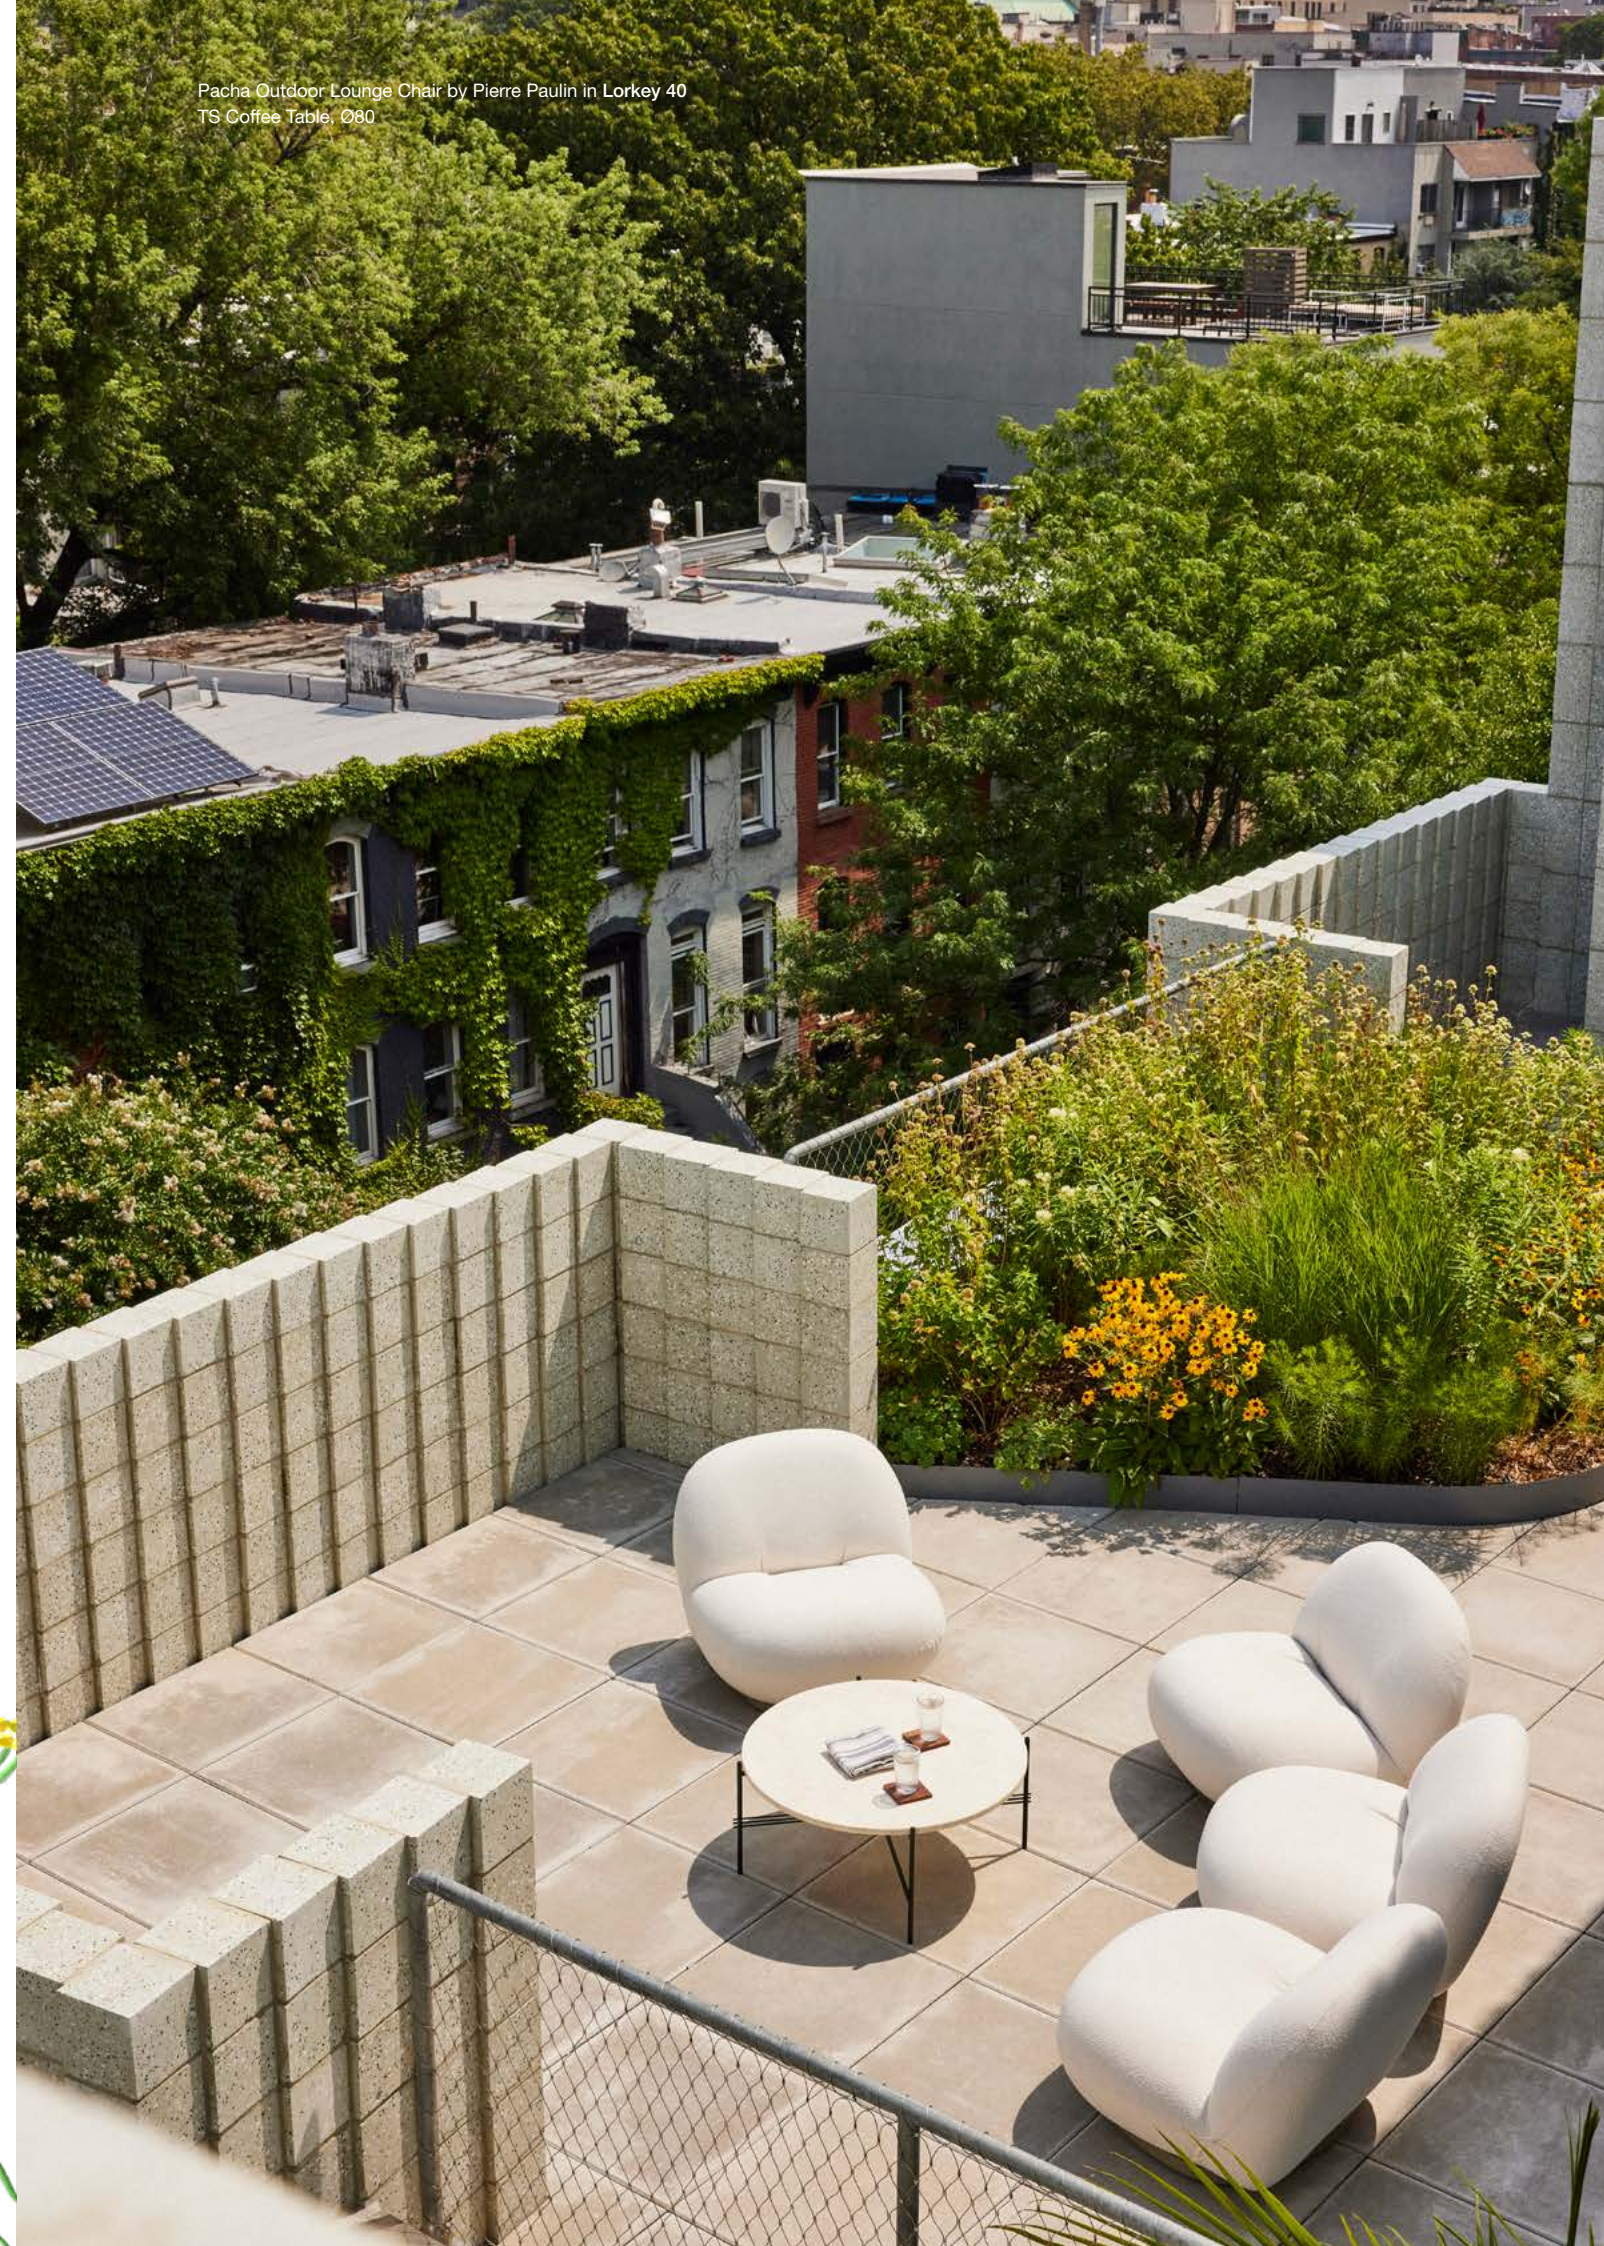

In the heart of Brooklyn, at the threshold between the up-and-coming ex-industrial neighborhood of Gowanus and the leafy residential hub of Boerum Hill, something new is taking shape. Here, the design-driven development firm Tankhouse is unfolding its vision for urban housing in the area.

Crucial to the success of 450 Warren Street is the inclusion of extensive outside space including covered open-air walkways and lushly planted courtyards, offering residents opportunities to relax, socialize, and even work outdoors whenever they wish.

LES COUVENT DES MINIMES

MANE, FRANCE

In the picturesque Provençal village of Mane, Fabien Piacentino and his family have overseen life at the historic hotel Le Couvent des Minimes for over a decade. Under their stewardship, Le Couvent L'Occitane Spa has become one of the most beloved boutique retreats in the South of France.

Built as a convent in 1613, the stone structure and its surrounding grounds have been at the heart of Mane village life for four centuries. Hidden away in lavender-scented Luberon gardens, the five-star hideaway is renowned for its Michelin-starred restaurant Le Feuillée, its beautiful setting, and its considered old-meets-new design aesthetic.

PASSALACQUA HOTEL

LAKE COMO, ITALY

The stunning villa on the shores of Lake Como was originally built in the 18th century for count Andrea Lucini-Passalacqua for the pleasures of love, food, friendship & the fine Italian art of dolce far niente — doing nothing & enjoying it.

Turned into an elegant luxury hotel after a comprehensive restoration, the new owners, the De Santis family, reopened the doors in 2022 with the ambition to carry on the historic purpose of the estate. Only a year after opening, Passalacqua was announced as The World's Best Hotel by an expert panel of 580 travel journalists, hoteliers and seasoned luxury travellers.

LA FONTAINE
SHANGHAI, CHINA

La Fontaine, known in Mandarin as "The Café with a View," invites patrons to revel in a harmonious fusion of East and West. Perched atop a modern office tower in Shanghai, with sweeping vistas of the historic Jing'an Temple, this café strikes a refined balance between cultural homage and contemporary allure. Fountains grace both the interiors and terrace, setting the stage for elegant al fresco dining.

HOME SHOULD BE A SAFE SPACE WHERE YOU CAN BE YOURSELF

Pacha 2-seater Sofa by Pierre Paulin in Natté Linen Chalk
Model 597 Table Lamp

I live in the northern part of the Netherlands with my fiancé Jos and our two children, Teun, eight, and Elin, seven. We live on an island with only 12 houses overlooking a large lake within a nature reserve. We cherish our little community because it's full of children, and they all play together on the street.

It took us seven years to build our home, a large villa with mid-century design features inspired by the work of architectural designer Scott Mitchell. It was built with the view in mind, incorporating height differences to emphasize it, and with spacious terraces all around the house.

WE LOVE TO OPEN THE DOORS AND EXTEND OUR LIVING SPACE

Our home has a modern, blocky design with large walls, high ceilings, and a lot of glasswork, which creates a feeling of living both indoors and outdoors. We love to open the doors and extend our living space with GUBI's beautiful MR01 and Pacha Lounge Chairs. The rounded shapes of the Pacha contrast with the minimalist lines of our architecture, and they have a very tactile quality that entices you to unwind. Last summer, I arranged them around a little fire pit, and it was such a cozy setup. I think this is key when selecting furniture – choosing pieces that make you feel comfortable and at ease in your own space.

9602 Floor Lamp in Wicker Willow

We lived in Stockholm and Denmark for three years and this experience has influenced my design choices. We love the minimalism and 'choosing well' mentality of Scandinavian culture.

The personal objects and the art that I've chosen is also what makes my home distinct. I practice ceramic art and our home is filled with pieces I've made. My partner says it's time I started selling them, but I can't – they feel like my children, and the firing process is so precious to me. Each piece comes out unique and special.

LOVED BY THE COMMUNITY

Sunshine enriches the body and the soul, invoking fantasies of golden shores and azure seas. Summer is the season of light, of bright skies, lifted hearts and easy, breezy alfresco living. In the summer sun, we can slow down and relish every moment, live the good life. From sun-kissed open terraces to covered patios, GUBI's alfresco living is being brought to life by design lovers around the world.

As day fades to night, portable lighting, crafted from weather-resistant materials, casts a warm glow, allowing the alfresco experience to linger a little longer. More than just materials, these elements shape an atmosphere—one that embraces spontaneity, creativity, and the simple joys of life outdoors.

OUTDOOR UPHOLSTERY

Explore GUBI's outdoor upholstery on gubi.com/upholstery.

Chevron Outdoor FR

Sophisticated and high performing, Chevron Outdoor FR is Dedar's distinctive 100% recycled fabric developed together with GUBI. A contemporary reimagining of a 70's fashion pattern, Chevron Outdoor FR's two-toned, gently textured zig-zag pattern is developed for furniture to be used in outdoor or leisure settings.

Leslie Stripe

Exclusively developed for GUBI – and Mathieu Matégot's Tropique Dining Chairs in particular – GreenGuard-certified for outdoor use, Leslie stripes balances beauty, flexibility and comfort with durability and resistance to sunshine and the elements. This nautically inspired pattern is designed to evoke long, leisurely summer days on Capri clifftop terraces or at sea-view Riviera cafés, with optional tasseled edges for an added bohemian touch on the Tropique Chairs.

Lorkey

Lorkey is a soft and luxurious outdoor textile designed with the contemporary terrace or poolside in mind. The soft, evenly textured frisé yarn is gently puffy when touched, making it extremely comfortable to the skin. Highly light resistant and easy to maintain, Lorkey is available in a cluster of color variations created to provide calm and elegance to leisure and outdoor spaces.

Libera

Textured, high performing and versatile, Libera from Dedar is designed for intensive use both indoors and outdoors. Designed to mimic soft indoor bouclé, using an innovative yarn to create a tightly woven, soft and textured fabric, Libera is highly light resistant, mold resistant and can withstand repeated deep cleaning. The colors feature a muted, neutral tone to suit a large array of leisure areas in private and professional use.

RATTAN

Treated with a water-based lacquer, GUBI's natural rattan products are made by hand using all-natural skin-on rattans of the Manao and Tohiti species – these varieties have the highest density, which makes them exceptionally strong.

Although rattan is not a true wood, its flexibility and durability have made it a popular material with furniture makers for millennia, and the ease with which it can be manipulated into different forms and patterns has made rattan the ideal companion to almost every style of decorative art. Rattan stems regenerate every five to seven years, making rattan one of the world's fastest-growing natural materials, and therefore a highly sustainable choice, as long as the canes are not cut before they reach maturity.

Natural Rattan

- * Flexible and strong
- * Handcrafted by Indonesian artisans
- * Lightweight → move outside, live inside.
- * Only suitable for indoor

Natural Rattan

SYNTHETIC RATTAN

With the introduction of the Grace Outdoor Lounge Chair, this extraordinary sculptural design is fully reimagined for open-air living.

Mirroring the crafted expression of the indoor version, the alfresco edition replaces rattan with a sophisticated synthetic equivalent. Made from powder-coated tubular aluminum and polyethylene fibers, this material offers the same flexibility as rattan while reinforcing the frame and improving stability. Its enhanced resistance to weathering and UV ensures that Grace can become a durable and stylish fixture in outdoor spaces such as patios, balconies, and terraces.

Synthetic Rattan

Black

Mushroom Gray

Alabaster White

Synthetic Rattan

- * All weather → UV resistant
- * Waterproof
- * Lightweight — move inside, live outside
- * Low maintenance

TEAK

Teak is a highly sought-after hardwood, and its subtle, classic aesthetic allows it to work perfectly in diverse indoor and outdoor environments. From an arid Mediterranean garden to a lush tropical backdrop or a Nordic fjord deck, teak blends well with any natural surroundings. Teak's high tensile strength and tight grain make it an excellent structural timber and a high-quality furniture wood. It is also rich in naturally occurring oils, which make it inherently resistant to the effects of weather and natural wear and therefore particularly suitable for outdoor furniture. GUBI's teak is buffed, bringing the natural oils already contained within the wood to the surface, and burnished to produce a rich sheen and a consistent color.

Teak

- * Tectona grandis
- * Asia, India, Indonesia, Malaysia, Myanmar, Thailand and Sri Lanka
- * Grows up to 40 meters
- * Small white flowers
- * Silvery-gray patina

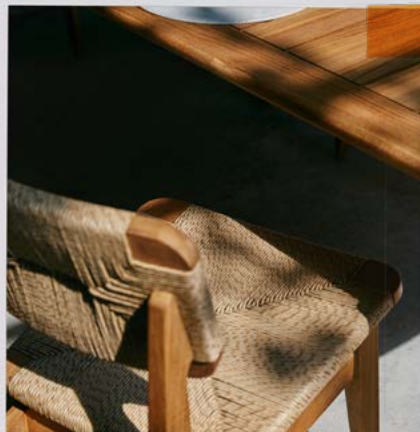

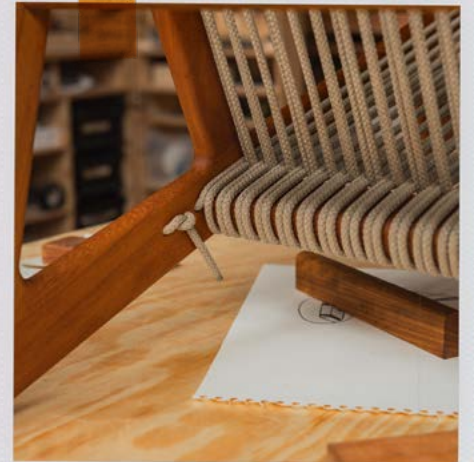

Iroko

- * Milicia excelsa
- * Africa
- * Grows up to 50 meters
- * Small flowers in green spikes
- * Becomes copper toned before eventually turning silver

IROKO

Known for its lively color expression, iroko is a naturally oil-rich hardwood that is highly durable and resistant to the elements, hence the fact it is frequently used in boat building, for outdoor decks and terraces, and to make premium outdoor furniture. Part of the beauty of iroko lies in its wide-ranging color spectrum – from a light brown akin to oak to a much darker, more teak-like shade. Over time, iroko timber patinates beautifully with time, taking on a coppery tone as it ages.

CERAMIC

Ceramic is an excellent choice for outdoor and indoor use because it resists liquids, grease, and abrasion. It's also suitable for counters and tables as it's antibacterial and completely food safe. Ceramic is easy to clean with clear warm water.

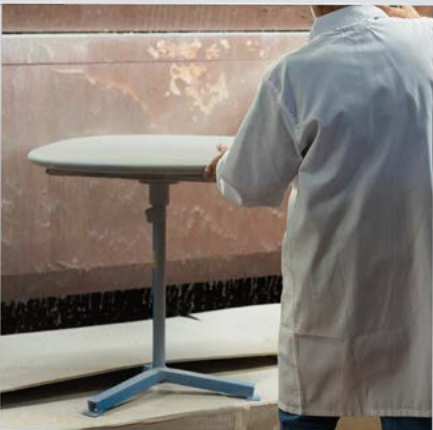

All sizes of the Carmel Tables feature the same generously proportioned ceramic tabletop, handcrafted from single-fired Italian stoneware, a material prized for its hard-wearing nature and resistance to weather and heat.

Clay is pressed into form

After drying, the tabletop is smoothed by hand

Semi-dry, a specially developed glaze is spray-painted by hand

The tabletop is fired at 1,250°

Carmel in Clam White, Rock Red, Pacific Blue and Midnight Blue

STAINLESS STEEL

Few materials have shaped the aesthetics of the modern era as profoundly as steel — efficient, versatile, and exceptionally strong. Within design, it has enabled unprecedented forms and a visual lightness never before seen in furnishings.

With stainless steel, these innovations extend seamlessly to outdoor spaces, delivering exceptional durability and resilience in any environment. Offered by GUBI in both powder-coated and polished finishes, it excels in all-weather conditions while maintaining its beauty and performance.

GLASS

The materiality and craftsmanship of lighting pieces made from glass is an exploration of the nature of both glass and light – and the ways in which they interact. It's all about striking the balance between function and atmosphere, effectively illuminating spaces while also drawing on the nuances of glass finishes to soften, layer and blur light, creating a dreamy and reflective ambience.

The shades of the Seine Portable Lamp are made by blowing the glass into a mold, which shapes the glass into its distinctive grooved pattern as it sets. As well as influencing the play of light, this gives each lamp an inviting tactility and an expressive depth – a beauty and character that resonates whether the light is switched on or off.

The Obello Lamp is designed with a single glass form, eliminating the need for a separate base. The shade is made from mouth-blown glass – a challenge given its shape – as a nod to old petroleum lanterns.

TRAVERTINE

Travertine is a limestone that is formed by a precipitation of calcium carbonate, deposited around mineral springs. The travertine stone contains cavities and imprints of plant parts -pitted holes may occur. Each travertine stone is unique, and the colors, pattern and veining will vary on each product.

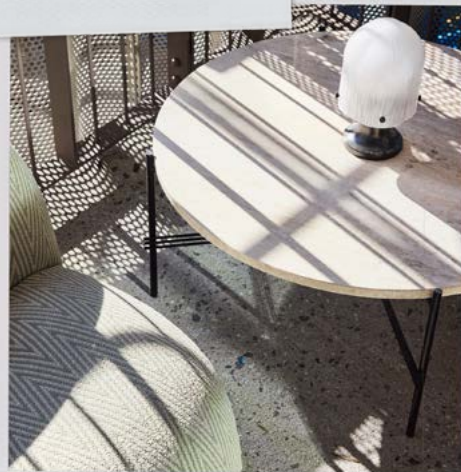

The use of a matched-color marble and cement solution to fill the naturally occurring crevasses in the travertine results in a durable surface able to withstand the elements that is easily cleaned with a soft cloth. As a natural material, the stone will gain a beautiful patina over time.

QUARTZITE

Combining the patterned allure of marble with the resilience and resistance of granite, quartzite is a natural stone formed when sandstone is subject to intense heat and tectonic pressure. As well as creating an entrancing mosaic of quartz crystals in the surface of the stone, this confluence of geological processes makes the material highly durable.

Compared to travertine, quartzite is harder and absorbs less water, and it is less susceptible to scratches than other, softer stones, making it ideally suited for outdoor use. Over time, the natural stone surface will subtly shift in tone, adding to its unique character.

An archetypal lounge chair, the F-Chair evolved out of the C-Chair and shares the same tapered rear legs, though the F-Chair features upright front legs. The more relaxed incline and paddle-shaped armrests, together with its woven seat which widens at the front, make the F-Chair an altogether more leisurely affair.

Building on the popularity of the Grace Lounge Chair in rattan, this edition takes Kindt-Larsen’s landmark design into new territory: the outdoors. Mirroring the crafted expression of the indoor version, the alfresco edition replaces rattan with a sophisticated synthetic equivalent. Made from powder-coated tubular aluminum and polyethylene fibers, this material offers the same flexibility as rattan while reinforcing the frame and improving stability.
